Animals, Aliens, AIs, and Enemies:
Who Matters Morally?

Sharon Lloyd
Philosophy
Dornsife College of Letters, Arts, & Sciences

We take it for granted that moral standards apply to our treatment of other human beings, but why, exactly? What qualities or characteristics does a being have to have in order to deserve moral consideration? Could animals, aliens, or even artificial intelligences also possess them? Do enemies lose their moral status?